

Equip Yourself with Helpful Strategies to Ship Frozen Foods

When you are in the food industry, there are certain shipping strategies you should keep in mind when frozen foods are involved. Here are a few tips and tricks to help make sure your frozen foods arrive at their destination safely and on time. Whether you are shipping to a grocery store or a restaurant, these tips will be helpful in getting your products where they need to go.

When It Comes to Frozen Foods, the Key Is to Keep Them Cold – Use an Insulated Shipping Container or Box

If you're looking for the most effective yet inexpensive way to ship frozen food, frozen food shipping boxes are an excellent option. Canadian food packaging suppliers offer several kinds of frozen food containers that can maintain a low temperature during transit, keeping anything from frozen meat to frozen meals in perfect condition. With frozen food shipping boxes, customers experience fewer frozen product losses and less time spent on freezer restocking, and your business sees improved customer satisfaction. Investing in frozen food shipping boxes is a great way to maximize the efficiency of your business while still keeping costs down.

Use Dry Ice or Gel Packs to Keep Your Food at a Consistent Temperature

Using frozen food shipping boxes equipped with either dry ice or gel packs is the best and most cost-efficient way to ensure your frozen food is kept at an even temperature during transit. With the added insulation provided by dry ice or gel packs, frozen meats and other frozen items can survive long journeys across multiple climates without spoilage so you can be sure your frozen food order arrives in perfect condition.
